

The "marsh" of Brotonne

We ride through the lower bank of the river and its wet meadows, crossing pretty villages (old churches and traditional houses) and making incursions on the towpath and under the bridge of Brotonne. Superb views of the river and its cliffs, of Caudebec-en-Caux, Villequier (picture above) and the castles that dominate them, on the opposite bank. Return through the northern part of the forest, whose dry soils have favored the planting of pines.
